An overview of activities in Boston in April

It looks like a busy April for all of us. Be sure to reserve your tickets for the East Coast regional premiere of Allegiance. Although the full cast has not been announced, we did hear that Michael Hisamoto, who did an outstanding job portraying Gordon Hirabayashi in the play We Hold These Truths at the Lyric Stage Company Theatre recently, will be taking on the role of Mike Masaoka. Reservation information is in the Events in New England section of this newsletter.

Looking to the far future, coming to Boston is the Lyric Stage Company’s production of Pacific Overtures, slated to run from May 10 to June 16, 2019. This musical, by Stephen Sondheim and John Weidman, is set in Japan beginning in 1853 and follows the difficult westernization of that country. It premiered on Broadway in 1976 to mixed reviews and closed after six months. The original Broadway production starred Mako as the Narrator and there was a sprinkling of Asian actors in the rest of the cast. It has been revived a number of times internationally and on and off Broadway. Two more recent New York productions featured B.D. Wong (2005) and George Takei (2017) as Narrators. The Lyric Stage Company did such an innovative staging of We Hold These Truths, it will be very interesting to see what they do with Pacific Overtures. We’ll publish more information as we receive it.

Also coming up are two Japanese Festivals in Boston. First is the Japan Festival on Sunday, April 29 on the Boston Common. It’s grown steadily over the years and is now a major event for the city. The smaller Brookline Cherry Blossom Festival at Brookline High School on Saturday, May 12, is also growing, but more of a community based event. This year for the first time, The Genki Spark is offering Bon Odori (Japanese folk dancing) Workshops prior to the Festival on April 28 and May 4. Details for both Festivals are in the Events in New England section.

hapa.me – 15 years of the hapa project
Artist Kip Fulbeck continues his project begun in 2001, of photographing persons who identify as “Hapa” – of mixed Asian/Pacific Islander descent – to promote awareness and positive acceptance of multiracial identity. He pairs the earlier photos with contemporary portraits and newly written statements by the subjects, reflecting physical and perspective changes. Also included are portraits of hundreds of new participants. For more information:  http://www.janm.org/exhibits/hapa-me/

Sadako’s Crane
Sadako Sasaki was born in Hiroshima and was two years old when the atomic bomb was dropped on that city. When she was 12 and hospitalized for leukemia, she learned of the Japanese belief that anyone who folds 1000 cranes would be granted a wish. Although she folded 1,300 cranes, she died on October 25, 1955. Since then Sadako and the crane has become immortalized as a symbol for world peace. One of the original cranes folded by Sadako was presented to the museum by her family and is on display. For more information:  http://www.janm.org/exhibits/sadako-crane/

Common Ground:  The Heart of the Community
