

National Security and Civil Liberties Remembering the Internment

Saturday February 9, 2008
3 PM to 5 PM

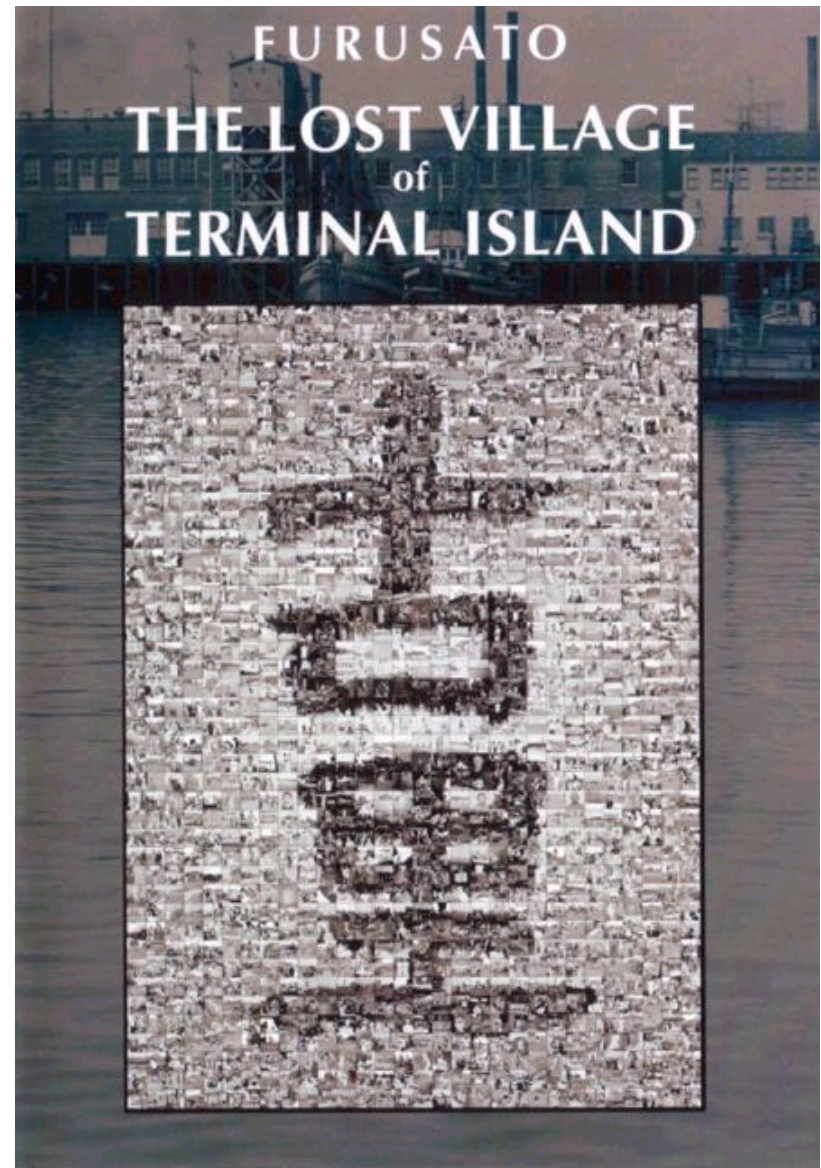

MIT Center for International Studies E38 6th Fl
292 Main Street, Cambridge MA

Please join in viewing The Lost Village of Terminal Island (2007) followed by light Japanese refreshments and informal discussion with:

- Margie Yamamoto, her family lived on Terminal Island
- Susumu Ito, 442nd Regimental Combat Team
- Tetsuo Takayanagi, Military Intelligence Service
- Walter Kondo, May Takayangi, Robert Maeda, internees
- Brigham Walker, with a yonsei view on current issues
- Kenneth Oye, MIT Political Science moderating

Sponsored by the MIT Center for International Studies and New England Japanese American Citizens League

Campus map and transit directions on other side of this sheet.

Terminal Island was once home to nearly 3000 Japanese immigrants and their families. These pioneers of the fishing industry prospered for several decades until 1941, when World War II triggered the evacuation and demolition of their community. The Lost Village of Terminal Island is the story of the creation and destruction of this unique place, as told by the Nisei who spent their childhoods